

Bio

Ava Valianti is a 17 year-old indie pop/pop-rock singer-songwriter from Massachusetts, whose emotionally honest songwriting and dynamic live performances have quickly established her as one of today's most exciting emerging artists. Blending introspective lyricism with soaring melodies and a guitar-driven sound, Ava writes songs that capture the complexities of growing up with striking authenticity.

Fresh off the release of her acclaimed sophomore EP, Sophomore Slump, Ava returns with her powerful new single, alternations, a deeply personal exploration of body image, self worth, and the pressure to meet impossible standards. The track continues her evolution as a fearless songwriter, tackling difficult subjects with vulnerability, empathy, and emotional depth.

Ava has racked up airplay on 300+ radio stations, seen her songs rank in the Top 200 of the weighted College Radio Charts, surpassed 600,000 career streams, and earned major award recognition including being named 1st Runner-Up at American Songwriter's Road Ready Talent Contest where she performed live at Nashville's famed Basement East. She has shared stages with nationally recognized artists, all while selling out her own headlining shows across New England, New York City, Nashville, and Los Angeles. She recently took the stage at the Grammy Museum in Los Angeles, further expanding her growing national profile and establishing herself as one of indie pop's most compelling new voices.
